William Hain Will Sing At High School May 14

American Tenor Has Sung With Famous Symphony Orchestras

SCHLUSSEL WILL BE ACCOMPANIST

Next Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock, the college will present as the last feature of its concert-lecture series Mr. William Hain, leading young American tenor. The concert will be held at the Middlebury high school auditorium.

Last summer, Mr. Hain was the tenor chosen to sing the famous Bach "B Minor Mass" under Koussevitsky with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Last February Albert Stoessel chose him for the tenor soloist with the New York Oratorio Society.

For about five years he has appeared with numerous light opera companies and has been soloist with the New York Philharmonic, the Cleveland Orchestra, and the Schola Cantorum of New York. He has made numerous recordings recently and has sung leading roles with the New York Opera Comique, and later appeared with Grace Moore in the New York production of "Du Barry" and the following year in a leading role of the successful "Roberta."

After visiting Middlebury, Mr. Hain will go to Montreal for rehearsals of the festival under Sir Thomas Beecham.

The program for the concert is as follows:

Accompanist ------ Sanford Schlussel

Part I

"Recitative and Air" from "Judas Maccabaeus"
(sound and alarm) by Handel

Part II

Kaleidoscope Will Appear Next Week

Cuts Held Up By Engraver Necessitate Delay In Distribution

Appearance of the first issue of the 1942 Kaleidoscope has been postponed until next week due to last minute changes in the make-up of the book.

The pictures of two girls were misplaced and so the Kaleidoscope had to be returned to the engravers, Howard-Wesson of Worcester, Mass., where a new cut was made. However, barring future mishaps, Charles L. Sanford '42, editor-in-chief, hopes that the first issue of this year's Kaleidoscope will be presented to Pres. Paul D. Moody next week in chapel, and that general distribution will follow shortly.

According to Sanford, the theme of this year's Kaleidoscope will be "an analogy, based on the hour glass, wherein the time element is reckoned in terms of the individual in his progress through college." There will be a diary on each page of the yearbook, written about events of the year 1940-41. This review of the year is made up of the best excerpts from sample diaries submitted by candidates for the editorial staff during the tryout period.

Changes Made In Faculty For Year 1941-1942

Announcement of faculty changes for the 1941-42 scholastic year has been made by Mrs. Pamelia S. Powell, secretary to the president.

Prof. Reginald L. Cooke of the American Literature department will take a sabbatical year, and Mr. George W. Allen has resigned to do graduate work.

The new instructors will be Mr. Howard M. Munford and Mr. Alfred R. Ferguson. Their tenure of office is unannounced. Mr. Munford graduated from Middlebury in 1934 and has taught at the Clark school in Hanover, N. H. from 1935-38. Since then, he has been at Harvard university working for his Ph. D. degree. His thesis is on William Dean Howells. While there he has been a student of Dr. Perry Miller. He will teach the survey course and American novel.

Mr. Ferguson, a graduate of College of Wooster in 1937, is at Yale university completing his Ph. D. work on Henry James. He will teach the survey course, the short story, and contemporary American poetry. Mr. Ferguson is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, has held the Yale university scholarship for the past three years. He's traveled extensively, having lived in the Philippines and China, and was an all-around athlete at the College of Wooster.

In the event that Mr. Walter T. Bogart is called into service during the summer, Mr. Robert W. Rafuse, Ph. D. of the University of Illinois will assume the duties of instructor in the political science department. Mr. Bogart is a commissioned officer in the Naval Reserve.

Men Will Elect Undergraduate Officers May 13

Elections for next year's Undergraduate president and men's class officers will be held in Mead chapel next Tuesday, May 13 from 6:30 p. m. until 8:00 p. m.

In the preferential system the voter expresses his choice by putting the figures 1, 2, 3, etc. opposite the candidates in order of preference. To become elected, a candidate must obtain a quota or a number of votes equal to one more than the entire number divided by one more than the number of offices to be filled.

First Ballots

The first choice ballots of each candidate are assembled and counted and the quota determined. If any candidate has first choices equal to or in excess of the quota, he is declared elected to the highest office. If he has an excess, his surplus, picked at random, is given to the second effective choices marked on them, for the second office.

If by the transfer of these surplus ballots this required quota is not reached, the candidate with the smallest vote is eliminated and his ballots redistributed. This continues until the required number of offices is filled.

The men nominated by the fraternities last week to fill the position of Undergraduate president, now held by John H. Hicks '41, are Kenneth E. Cosgrove, David W. Emmons, Stanwood F. Johnson, David K. Smith, A. Wilson Wood and Edward H. Yeomans.

Senior Officers

Nominees for senior class officers to replace Stephen H. Arnold, Dan B. Armstrong, Robert L. Johnson and Thomas H. Bennett are Charles S. Beach, David Black, Frank D. Blizard, Robert W. Bredenberg, Wilson F. Clark, John Corbin, Richard C. Davis, John B. Franklin, Jack G. McMann, Robert S. Maxwell, Willard M. Mayo, Theodore E. Russell, Howard A. Schlieder Jr., Dwight F. Smith, Parke H. Wright, and John W. Zydik.

This year's junior class officers consisted of A. Wilson Wood, Kenneth E. Cosgrove, Edward H. Yeomans, and John S. Prukop. Next year's will be chosen from the following: Elliot A. Baines, James G. Clark, M. Scott Eakeley, William R. Engesser, William F.

'Gold In The Hills' Will Be Presented Thursday

SKYLINE BODY TO SEND GROUP TO I. O. C. A. OUTING

Delegates from the Mountain club will represent Middlebury at the annual spring conference of the Intercollegiate Outing club association at Camp Russel near Richmond, Massachusetts, on May 9, 10, and 11.

According to David K. Smith '42, recently elected president of the Mountain club, the Middlebury delegation will consist of about ten Skyline members. Those already named to attend the conference are Wilson F. Clark '42, Augustin A. Root '42, Margaret A. Fell '42, S. Carol Hartman '43, and Smith, who will head the representation.

The weekend will combine the business of legislation and elections with the pleasures of an outing in the Berkshires. Plans for the association's annual autumn hike in the Adirondacks will also be discussed.

Thirty-three different colleges will be represented at the Camp Russel convention.

College Orchestra Drops Audition Bid

Union Card Necessary For Ballroom Position in New Jersey

By Robert Halligan

After having completed arrangments for a trip down to the Rose Ballroom, Lake Hopatcong, New Jersey to fulfill an audition date with prospects of a summer job in sight, Middlebury college's crack dance orchestra, the Black Panthers, received a disappointing blow yesterday in the form of a letter from Mr. Louis Kraus, manager of the establishment, which informed the youthful musicians that it would be necessary for them to be members of the American Federations of Musicians in order to play for the audition.

This came as a complete surprise to the boys, since they had carried on previous correspondence and arrangments with Mr. Kraus, specifying that they were not members of the union, and still he made no objection other than an observance concerning the impracticality of such a long trip.

Receive Advice

Thus the new situation created quite a bit of furor among the leaders of the outfit, and they wasted no time in rounding out the difficulty with the valuable assistance of Professor Bogart of the college's political science department, and Judge Harland B. Howe of Burlington, Vt. Both of these gentlemen made it clear that it would be impossible for the Panthers to sign any contract affiliated with the A. F. of M. since they were not all members of the organization. However Judge Howe helped them further by advising them to telegraph Mr. Kraus, informing him that they would not be able to make the audition for the above reason, and further that they had promised to appear on May 11 only under these stipulations which he first sent—those which made no mention of union membership.

Further Stipulations

Concerning the letter received yesterday from Mr .Kraus, there were further stipulations enclosed which altered the situation. Evidently a member of the "old school," the manager of the Rose Ballroom disclosed his failing for the sweet strains of a waltz, for he insisted that the orchestra provided numbers in this tempo "at least every fourth set, and possibly every third." To those who have heard the Panthers thus far, they can well understand the surprise in store for the members—for the outfit is definitely on the swing side.

Add to this his recommendation that each set of three numbers last no longer than 6½ minutes, (with intermissions of only 1 minute) and one familiar with the time duration of a single number (recordings for instance usually last from 3 to 3½ minutes) has even further evidence to realize the impracticality, even impossibility of the Panthers attempting to fill the bill.

Dramatic Awards To Be Given After Friday Performance

THEME BUILT UPON EARLY PRODUCTION

At 8:15 Thursday night the Playhouse curtain will rise for the first night's performance of "Gold in the Hills." The drama will be given again on Friday night, when Prof. V. Spencer Goodreds will present the Masque and Shingles awards.

Gold Masque keys will be presented to those who have done exemplary and continued dramatic work. Students who have done outstanding work this year either in acting or in lighting, properties, box office work or some other phase of play production will receive Shingles, thespian awards.

Cast of characters in "Gold in the Hills" by J. Frank Davis, directed by Professor Goodreds, in order of appearance, is as follows:

Speaker of the prologue ----------
---------- S. Peter Nikitas '43
Lizzie Jones ------ Phyllis V. Rutan '44
Barbara Stanley Denise B. Aubuchon '43
Hiram Stanley ---- Henry O. Parry '43
Nell Stanley ------ Ruth C. Child '44
John Dalton ---- Donald S. Putnam '42
Richard Murgatroyd
---------- Walter M. Berger '43
Sam Slade ---- John E. Unterecker '44
Jenkins ------ Lewis M. Alexander '42
A derelict -- Armand A. Annunziata '43
Big Mike Slattery-Edward T. Peach '43
Pete the Rat ---- James A. Ferren '42
Old Kate ---- Fiammetta C. Donati '44
Professor ---- A. Edmund Grosvenor '43

Season tickets or the box office price of fifty cents will be the Playhouse admission on Thursday and Friday nights. The junior class is also selling tickets.

VT. SCHOLARSHIP CANDIDATES WILL SEE CAMPUS LIFE

On this Sunday and Monday, May 11 and 12, candidates for the Vermont Scholarships will be guests of the college. A full program has been planned to show the candidates a glimpse of college life at Middlebury.

Following the interviews of the candidates with the Committee of Selection on Monday afternoon, the awards will be announced. President Moody, Mr. E. J. Wiley, Dr. Stewart Ross of Rutland, and Mr. Carlton H. Simmons of Boston are the members of this committee. The last two men are members of the Board of Trustees of the college.

Awards Changed

The plan of awarding the scholarships was changed recently. Six outstanding Vermont men will be chosen as recipients, and these men will receive the full tuition of three hundred and fifty dollars each year. Formerly, the plan allowed ten men to receive two hundred and fifty dollars each year.

The candidates will report at the office of the director of admissions and personnel between 3:30 and 4:00 p. m. Sunday. The group will attend the Sunday Vespers service before going to the fraternity houses for supper. Sunday evening will be given over to the showing of a motion picture entitled, "A Year of Undergraduate Life at Middlebury."

Tests On Monday

On Monday morning, following a psychological test and daily chapel, the candidates will visit the college buildings, classes, and laboratory demonstrations. The program Monday afternoon will consist entirely of interwiews and the announcement of awards.

All the fraternities are cooperating with the college in that they will supply overnight accomodations and meals for the candidates. This will enable the candidates to see the fraternity life as well.

Those who have made applications for the Vermont Scholarships are: Hazen Annis, Barton; Arthur Blake, Marshfield; Richard Brusco, Brattleboro; John Calhoun, Middlebury; Vin-

Johnny Long's Orchestra Formed In Undergrad Years At Duke University

By William L. Hennefrund '42

By this time it is old hat to say that Johnnie Long and his band are going to play this year's Junior Prom date. But the strange thing about Johnny Long is, that while almost any person who is young enough to shuffle along on both feet knows that he is a sensational band leader, few seem to be acquainted with more than a handful of facts about him.

That is where we come in. Sitting before us is the press manual, sent to us by the General Amusement corp., (ten-percenter's of Long's) and it practically tells you how many molars Mr. Long carries around, up there in his head, (along with those very original musical ideas.)

Critics of the dance band have found Long very pleasing. Metronome says "A good clean band with a good clean beat describes the way Johnny Long's band does it." All of which is another way of saying Johnny Long's band is very danceable.

As you might well guess, Johnny Long started his career as a bandleader at Duke university, which also nurtured Les Brown. A couple of miles away from the Duke campus is North Carolina university, which is responsible for Kay Kyser, John Scott Trotter, Hal Kemp, Skinnay Ennis, etc., etc., ad infinitum. So you can see that Mr. Long comes from good orchestra leadin' territory. While playing with the Duke outfit, Long was also a member of the college symphony orchestra, becoming its leader in his senior year.

After graduation in 1935, Long and eleven others from the Duke band decided it might not be a bad scheme to stick together awhile. The money which they had made at Duke was enough to send them through college, so they figured there was no sense in passing up a good thing. Besides, they were offered an engagement at The Willows in Pittsburgh for the summer. They took it.

After this, jobs came from the Cavalier Beach club, Va., the Copley Plaza hotel in Boston, the Statler in Buffalo, and so forth, finally ending up at the Roseland ballroom in New York, which likes to take the credit for "discovering" Johnny Long.

In the meantime, the band had picked up a vocalist bearing the name of Bob Houston, who attended Massachusetts State university. The female warbler is Helen Young who fortunately sounds more like Helen O'Connell of

TO YOUTH MOVEMENTS IN GENERAL

Last week the CAMPUS received a phone call from a field secretary of one of the many youth organizations that are enjoying a strange mushroom growth in these times of emergency. The field secretary was a woman representing the Student Defenders of Democracy and in her attempt to organize student support in Middlebury she turned quite naturally to the student paper. Rather than to make a small scale martyr of her in the eyes of some students, the CAMPUS office, as politely as possible, discouraged her chances in Middlebury but did give her the information she wanted. We have since learned that she had convinced at least one student and leaving pamphlets and articles in her wake, she departed on her cursade for the defense of democracy.

This is not an attempt to single out any youth movement as the object of editorial comment. What we have to say could as well be applied to America First, American Peace Mobilization, American Student Union or any of the several score of organizations who are appealing to the American college people for support every day.

We are using the following letter received from one of these organizations as the basis for our reply and as a statement of our policy regarding this type of mass thinking and action. This letter came into the CAMPUS box last week. It makes little difference whether the organization is pro-convoy or anti-convoy, pro-conscription or anti-conscription. The CAMPUS doesn't like their ways and means. One letter came under the salutation " Dear Student Defender." This one happened to be stating the case for convoying ships to Great Britian. Its formula for success was as follows:

"You have received in our last mailing the arguments for convoys. Have them on the tip of your tongue. . . Where it seems safe you can tack up a petition for signatures. But remember, we don't want some America First member tearing down our petitions. . . You have seen by the Gallup Poll that the country is split about fifty-fifty for convoys. Let's push for a big majority. . . Hitler wins by division and delay. Let's show him he cannot put that over on America."

Our reply to this letter and applicable to other organizations regardless of what they stand for but use these methods:

Dear Student Defenders of Anything:

It is true that Hitler wins by division and delay. But it is also true that Hitler won and continues to win and will maintain his position by receiving just the sort of blind, unthinking, blanket endorsement from the German people as you now advocate the American colleges to give to your program. . . endorsement of people who let some one else do their thinking for them. . . some one else who would furnish free of charge the arguments that they have on the tips of their tongues today.

You see, we feel that Middlebury would still prefer to do its own thinking, rather than have some handy service such as yours come along with a ready-made solution that requires little more than the stroke of a pen on a star-spangled petition. We feel that Middlebury would rather respect the opinions of others than fight its way to tacked up petitions of rival members. There is another side to every question and organizations like yours refuse to admit it.

No doubt your reply will be that you make it possible for the opinions of your followers to become effective. We feel that an individual opinion that does not result from outside help and that is free of programs that are not flexible enough to allow a shift will carry more weight than the stigma with which organizations like yours find themselves saddled in this day.

Sincerely,
The CAMPUS Board

Elizabeth Neal Confers On Secretarial Training

Miss Elizabeth Neal, of the Interboro institute of secretarial training, interviewed Middlebury students interested in secretarial training last Thursday, May 1.

The Interboro institute gives courses in stenography in foreign languages, as well as medical and regular commercial courses. Graduates are prepared for secretarial or executive positions, and are aided by the institute's placement bureau.

Several former Middlebury students have attended Interboro and have secured satisfactory jobs. Foreign language stenography has become increasingly important because of closer relations with the Latin-American countries. Spanish, French, German, and Italian are taught along with methods of typing, shorthand, mimeographing and dictaphone operating.

EX-DUKE MUSICIAN TO PLAY FOR PROM

Jimmie Dorsey's band than Helen O'Connell, which is excellent recommendation to one and all.

Little is known of Long because of his rapid rise. His sensational jump to top ranks is due to the fact that the boys had been working together while in college, and thus did not have to waste a year or so getting shaped together as a unit.

Long himself plays a violin, but as another bandleader, Jan Savitt, he rarely sees fit to work it into his distinctive arrangements.

DEFENSE STAMPS, BONDS GO ON SALE

Last week the sale of defense saving stamps and bonds for defense began in Middlebury. Through the local banks and post office both government savings bonds and defense stamps will be sold to the public.

These United States bonds run for ten years and are the same type that have been on sale since 1935. The defense stamps, however, are new. These are arranged so that small investors who do not have enough for a 25 dollar bond will be able to make a small defense investment. The stamps are of small denominations running up from one dollar and can be bought at any time.

These stamps are then collected in a folder and are saved until there are 25 dollars worth of them. They are then exchanged for an interest bearing bond. Although they do bear interest in themselves, these stamps will enable many small investors to eventually acquire ownership of United States Savings bonds.

Letter on Convoy Issue Reprinted from Friday's "Middlebury Register"

To the Editor:

Early in April President Roosevelt said to his press conference: "Convoys mean shooting, and shooting means war." We believe that is right. Also, according to the most recent Gallup polls, more than four out of five Americans do not want this country in the present world war. And those two things add up to this: Convoys mean a war which the great mass of people do not want.

We urge your readers to write individual letters to our President, Senators, and Congressman about convoys. It is a matter of war or of staying out of war.

If it should turn out that Americans want convoys enough to want war, it will have to be war. The undersigned, however, believe that we can serve our country and world better by staying out. We can serve by ministering to human suffering in war countries, by saving the lives of our finest young men, by keeping one country free from a wartime dictatorship we may not shake off, by making democracy work over here.

To the Editor:

We believe that Western civilization is now facing its gravest crisis. That if England goes down, we shall have to face the totalitarian combination alone. The Lend-Lease Bill is now law and our country has determined to back the democratic way of life against the totalitarian with every resource at our disposal. Without our aid England cannot survive.

The President of the United States is now awaiting the expression of public opinion to enable him to act. We urge you immediately:

1. Write or wire your approval of his action thus far.
2. Assure him of your personal support to make effective the pledges which he has already given.
3. To ensure delivery of our aid, approve of American Convoys.

We must not give way to despair, nor allow lethargy to overcome us. "America must act;" you must do your share. Write the President today and indicate how far you would go with any or all of the above three steps.

OPINIONS OF THE WEEK

"Opinions of the Week" is an attempt on the part of the CAMPUS to furnish a cross-section of opinion on questions that are of interest to the entire college. It is hoped that the student body will cooperate by suggesting questions and volunteering opinions in order that this may become a worthwhile feature of our editorial page.—Ed.

What do you think about the present system of comprehensives and reading week?

The review for the comprehensive examination is useful in that it serves as a review and correlation of courses. This same effect might better be gained by a correlation course in the student's major subject, with a final exam, but no comprehensives. A reading week of at least a few days should be given to everyone including the seniors.

Elinor L. Dickie '42

If the comprehensive system is to be continued, revision seems necessary. Comprehensive examinations should be limited to a restricted group of seniors who wish them for graduate work, or for records. In this case the correlation course should be extended from a half year, to a whole year course. Some sort of tutorial system might be substituted for the correlation system. Also, plans should be made for a senior reading week.

Geraldine Mosher '41

The general idea of comprehensives is fine in that a senior draws together the courses in his major field, but I would like to make three suggestions concerning the present system. First, that every student who has passed successfully four years of college work deserves his degree, and in order to relieve the severe strain which culminates in seven hours of nerve-wracking exams, we believe that it should not be possible to fail these final tests.

Sécondly, that comprehensve study begin in September and that the test itself be given in early spring. Third, that the aims of the various departments be standardized so that the course of study and examinations will be more uniform.

B. M. Grow '41, D. J. Lathrop '41
Carol E. Hubbard '41

Reading week is an excellent plan just before final examinations, but I never agreed with the system of comprehensives because they attempt to measure a whole college education in one examination.

Charles B. Gilbert '42

Correlation of four years of college work cannot be done in the last half of the senior year and tested adequatly in comprehensive examinations. However, I believe that comprehensives were a step in the right direction, a direction whose goal I feel should be the establishment of a tutorial system patterned after Harvard and Yale, or modified to its needs, at Middlebury.

Malcolm Freiberg '41

I am in favor of comprehensives. A student who attends a higher educational institution should have a certain standard and review by which he is to be judged. It would be fairer however, to both the professor and the student, if comprehensives were conducted in a period of every two years. This would avoid cramming and other such means used by the students to grasp the review in their major.

Undergraduate Leaders To Be Elected Tuesday

Officers for the next sophomore class, now consisting of Edward T. Peach, M. Scott Eakeley, William R. Engesser, and Edward E. Shea, will be chosen from the following: George H. Booth, Paul D. Davis, Horace J. DePodwin, Edward D. Fleming, Harold H. Hollister, Thomas M. Johnson, Kurt K. Klein, Robert P. Mooney, Robert E. Outman Jr., J. Allan Robinson, Robert I. Schrack, Earl H. Upham Jr., John P. Urban, George F. Wiemann, and Frederick D. Williams.

Wesleyan Head To Talk Sunday

James L. McConaughy, president of Wesleyan university and lieutenant governor of Connecticut, will be the vespers speaker in the final Sunday chapel service of the year this Sunday.

President McConaughy received his Bachelor of Arts degree at Yale university in 1909, his Master of Arts degree at Bowdoin in 1911, and his Ph. D. degree at Columbia in 1913. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and has been president of Wesleyan since 1925. He received an honorary degree of LL. D. from Middlebury in 1930. President McConaughy has spoken at Middlebury annually for many years.

When President Moody was teaching at Mount Hermon, President McConaughy was a pupil in one of his classes.

MAXINE STELLMAN TO PERFORM WITH STATE SYMPHONY

Maxine Stellman, of the Metropolitan Opera company, will be the guest soloist at a concert to be given by the Vermont Symphony orchestra on May 27 at White River Junction. The concert will be a feature of the annual convention of the Vermont Federation of Women's clubs.

The Vermont Choral society, directed by Prof. H. Ward Bedford, head of the music department at Middlebury College, and accompanied by Mr. Dan P. Dickinson, music instructor at Middlebury, will sing several selections. Among these is Brahms' "Song of Fate," which will be performed jointly by the choral society and the orchestra. Barbara McCarteny, mezzo-soprano, of Bellows Falls, is scheduled to be soloist in the chorus of one hundred and fifty voices.

The orchestra will play "Pathetique" from Tschaikowsky's "Symphony No. 6," and Brahms' "Hungarian Dance No. 5", from which the "Song of Fate" is taken.

The appearance of the state symphony will be a part of a whole evening's program of musical entertainment presented for the three day convention through the arrangement of the music department of the federation, headed by Mrs. Ellison Lee of Bellows Falls.

Social Committee of Student Union Selected for Next Year

Representatives to the social committee of Student Union were elected last week by members of the freshman, sophomore and junior classes.

Next year, Virginia S. Poole '42 will represent the senior class, Nancy L. Cowgill '43 was chosen to represent the juniors, and Lois A. Hanchett '44 will represent the sophomores.

MRS. MOODY RECEIVES JUNIORS, SOPHOMORES

Mrs. Paul D. Moody has invited the women of the sophomore class to a tea at her home Thursday afternoon from four to six.

Members of the faculty and wives of the faculty who will be guests of Mrs. Moody are Mrs. Mary M. Barney, Mrs. Douglas S. Beers, Miss Ramona Ford, Miss Ida V. Gibson, Mrs. Perley Perkins, Mrs. Albert Ranty, Mrs. Benjamin F. Wissler, Mrs. Theodore H. Zaremba.

Mrs. Paul D. Moody entertained the junior women at her home last Thursday afternoon from four to six o'clock.

Mrs. Charles F. Whiston poured. Other faculty members present were Miss Rose E. Martin, Mrs. Janet W. Kingsley, Mrs. Juan A. Centeno, Mrs. Edgar J. Wiley, Mrs. John H. Patterson, Mrs. Everett Skillings, Mrs. John F. Haller.

FACULTY WILL GIVE PLAY

'Par Un Jour de Pluie' Will Be Presented To French Club

Evelyn G. Parent '41, president of the French club, announces that there will be a meeting of the club on Tuesday evening, May 13. At this time a play is to be presented entitled "Par un Jour de Pluie" with the entire French faculty making up the cast. The meeting will be opened at 7:45 in the Chateau.

This is the first meeting that will be open to the freshmen who have been accepted as members of the club. Applications have been given to those seeking to join the organization and the new members will be selected from these.

Organ Recital To Be Held Sunday May 11 Featuring Pieces By Franck, Bach

A new type of entertainment will be brought to Middlebury next Sunday evening in the person of Mr. David Schaub of Boston, who will present organ selections from Bach and Franck. The recital will be held in the Mead Memorial chapel at 7:30 and will be open to all, without admission.

To the best knowledge of Prof. H. Ward Bedford, the head of the Middlebury music department, Mr. Schaub has been highly appreciated in the past and comes to Middlebury on the very best recommendations. Mr. Schaub is at the present time, a graduate student in Harvard university.

The following pieces to be presented at the recital have been chosen by Mr. Schaub from the works of the well known composer, Johann Sebastian Bach: "Toccata in F Major," "Come, Redeemer of Our Race," "Christ Came to Jordan," and "Fantasia and Fugue in C Minor." For the remaining portion of his program, Mr. Schaub has selected the following works from the pen of Cesar Franck: "Chorale in A Minor," "Pastorale," and "Piece Heroique."

PROF. OWEN LENDS RUSKIN'S LETTERS

Prof. Harry G. Owen, associate professor of English and Fine Arts has loaned a selection of photographs, letters and music of John Ruskin to the college library. This exhibit is being presented in the Abernethy room this week.

Letters to Ruskin from his mother, Margaret Ruskin, and Elizabeth Barret Browning are shown along with one from him to "my dear S." "This last letter, written in 1870 at the time of the Franco-Prussian war, is most typical of Ruskin, himself," said Miss Viola C. White, curator of the Abernethy room. He talks of the countries at war and of the French leader, Napoleon.

Rembrandt's first etching, an image of the Italian vocalist, Patti, may be seen, and music composed by Robert Schumann, "Der Mussbaum," which was presented to Sembrich by Clara Schumann is also on display.

Middlebury Helps Solve Crime In 'True Detective' Mystery Plot

Police Catch Thieves Who Stole First Folio of Shakespeare

By L. Amanda Sanborne '43

Crime touched Middlebury (though you'd never guess in the nice spring air), and "True Detective," a Macfadden publication, specializes in crime so it's only natural that we should all come together in the June issue in the story on the Williams college Shakespeare theft.

Lurking behind that man in the bilious green on the front cover is another man in blue, and who knows but he may have been the criminal who forged Prexy's stationary on which to write an introduction to the librarian at Williams? A little over a year ago on February 8, 1940, a "Professor Sinclair Gillingham of the English Department" of Middlebury handed a letter to the librarian at Williams. It was a letter of introduction from President Paul Dwight Moody asking that Professor Gillingham be allowed to do research on the works of Shakespeare. Shortly after Professor Gillingham left the Chapin library it was discovered that the most valuable of the four Shakespeare folios, the First Folio, printed in 1623, was gone.

Williams Investigates

When Williamstown's one man police force, George A. Royal, examined the letter a few hours later, he found himself examining a letter written under a Middlebury College letterhead. It also had printing to indicate that the letter came from the office of the president. Even the details of Prexy's initials in the lower left hand corner had been attended to—how would anybody at Williams know that they weren't Mrs. Powell's initials and that the whole thing was a fake?

Prexy, when he heard of the letter, promptly showed that the whole thing was a forgery even unto the letterhead. But it's the little things that keep reappearing in magazines like "True Detective." Professor Gillingham never appeared again until he got properly stewed in a barroom in Albany and being too near a phone for the whole gang's good he swished into the receiver "I'm wanted by the police."

When Gillingham, alias Lynch, woke up in an unfurnished room of the Albany jail it was the beginning of the end. Macfadden would be bankrupt without people like the Kwiatkowski's of Buffalo and their in-law Biernot, but, unknowingly, they complied to round out the plot. Biernot had lured Lynch into becoming a bogus professor, and they had visited libraries and Shakespeare collections all over this section of the country though afterwards everybody remembered that they weren't the type.

Crime Career

"Bill" Kwiatkowski had started his literary crime early with a word for word plagiarism of a 15 year old story—he got the two year term; Lynch had already spent three months in jail because he didn't have any money for bail, so he only got three months. Edward Kwiatkowski had merely done messenger work though it hadn't been very successful, and Biernot, also of Buffalo, had been caught for bootlegging a few months earlier so he was sent to the penitentiary.

It is amazing the places one hears or sees "Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vermont" all of a sudden. It may be the G. A. in New York or the June, 1941 issue of "True Detective". Williams, of course, took a lot of the spotlight, but one is bound to wonder whether Williams is the college we think it is when we see the picture of the Williams campus accompanying the story. There are six girls, carrying books, walking down the street from the library. They wouldn't have books on houseparties; it's a shame there weren't some Williams men in the picture just to give authenticity.

Moral to Affair

The moral at the end of the "True Detective" story (and it is a good moral) is that in the stolen First Folio in the play "Measure for Measure" Professor Gillingham might have read "the law hath not been dead" or "crime doesn't pay" and have avoided all his trouble. But he didn't take the First Folio, worth a fifth of a million, for the moral!

Literary Meeting Hears Monologue

Mendel Gives "Our Town" Selections Before Club In Pearsons Social Hall

"Our Town," Pulitzer prize winning play by Thornton Wilder, was presented in dramatic monologue form by Douglas Mendel '42 before last Wednesday's meeting of the Literary club in Pearsons recreation room.

Mendel's rendition marked the eleventh meeting of the year and the last in the series of student programs presented by the Literary club. Present plans for the remainder of the year call for a final meeting featuring a discussion by Robert Frost on some one phase of poetry. It is also planned to hold a picnic outing at Lake Dunmore on Saturday, May 24.

The club, founded last spring with the idea of applying both objective and rational criticism to the great literary classics and with the idea of fostering independent student criticism, has considered over fifty different selections this year. Such authors as John Donne, Keats, Shelley, Whitman, T. S. Eliot, and others have undergone criticism.

On six separate occasions the organization has sponsored individual student programs and has entertained several outside lecturers.

BREAKFAST GIVEN HONOR STUDENTS BY MORTAR BOARD

The senior members of Mortar Board gave the annual May day breakfast at Bristol inn last Sunday morning for those freshmen and sophomore women who have been on the Dean's list for either of the past two semesters. A quiz program was featured at the breakfast.

Barbara M. Grow was in charge of the event. Those who assisted were: Charlotte E. Gilbert, in charge of transportation; Elizabeth F. Wolfington and Ruth H. Packard, place cards and flowers; Helen G. Rice and Carol E. Hubbard, invitations; Miss Grow, Helen L. West, and Geraldine B. Mosher, programs.

Guests attending the breakfast were Dean Eleanor S. Ross, Miss Ruth W. Temple, Mrs. Reginald L. Cook, Miss Ida V. Gibson, Mrs. Waldo H. Heinrichs, Miss Mary A. Williams.

Miss West, Miss Grow, and Miss Mosher were in charge of the quiz program, Miss West acting as Professor Quiz. First prize was awarded to Virginia L. Carpenter '43. College songs were sung throughout the meal and entertainment.

The quiz theme was carried out in the decorations and place cards with large question marks. Prizes were a piggy bank and a handkerchief.

The guests, besides the chaperones, were twenty-two members of the freshman and sophomore classes of the women's college.

SECRETARY VISITS ALPHA XI DELTAS

Mrs. Conger Guest During Initiation Last Week

Mrs. Dunham F. Conger, national secretary of Alpha Xi Delta, visited the Alpha Pi chapter in Middlebury last week.

Arriving on Wednesday, Mrs. Conger attended special pledging and initiation service held in the rooms that evening for her benefit. Thursday afternoon, she was entertained at tea with representatives of other sororities and the Alpha Xi Delta patronesses, Mrs. Mary M. Barney, Mrs. Benjamin F. Wissler, and Mrs. Hilda S. Crosby, as guests. A business meeting was called for that evening, after which Mrs. Conger spoke to the sorority. A song practice for step singing and a social period followed.

The national secretary had interviews with Dean Eleanor S. Ross and the officers and members of the sorority during her stay in Middlebury. She left for her home in Albany, New York, on Friday.

Dr. H. Tweedy Discusses Youth On Second Visit

Speaking to Middlebury students for the second time during the school year, Dr. Henry Hallam Tweedy, professor of practical theology at Yale university, used as his theme last Sunday the question "How old are you?"

Dr. Tweedy told about a boy in England who had a full-grown beard at the age of four, and died of old age at seven. On the other hand, Michaelangelo was still painting at the age of eighty. These, however, are merely physical age—and this was not what Dr. Tweedy meant by his topic question. Mentally, our ages as college students are theoretically quite similar, but our aptitudes are different.

Balanced Interests

Many men are well-versed in their own fields, but are lost when it comes to the things that count in the world. As as example, Dr. Tweedy said, "We all like jazz, but, do we also like Bach, Brahms, Wagner and DeBussy?" He continued his interogatory address by saying, "In the field of beauty, are we youngsters or grown-ups?" He also remarked that grown-up people don't boast or bully, and that immoral relationships between men and women are childish.

College Skeptic

Dr. Tweedy devoted the next part of his sermon to a discussion of the college skeptic—the man or woman who has nothing to do with religion, or so he or she says. The skeptic attacks religion as foolish, and has true examples to back up his beliefs—such as, the holy rollers and similar institutions. But these examples, according to Dr. Tweedy, are not true religion. People do not live to go to a heaven of gold-paved streets and pearly gates, they live for an intelligent existence, the creation of good-will, friendship and things of this nature. The ancient creeds and doctrines are not guides for us today; they are also foolish.

Dr. Tweedy closed his humorously-illustrated talk with a question: "Another college year has gone by—have we grown any during this year?"

Final Meeting Held By '43 Discussion Group

Members of the sophomore discussion group held the last meeting of this year at Prof. Waldo H. Heinrichs' home Friday night.

About twenty people attended, and the current topics of the day were discussed, including the economic results of the war, the draft, and local campus topics. John Walsh '43 led the discussion.

Mrs. Heinrichs served refreshments, ice cream and cake, after the meeting. Special late permissions until 11 o'clock were given to the women, since it was the last meeting of this year.

The discussion group each year is made up of sophomores who are interested in keeping up with the world and its problems through these weekly meetings with Professor Heinrichs.

DENTISTRY

The field of dentistry offers to college students an attractive career. It provides a worthy intellectual challenge, a life of professional service with satisfactory income, and an opportunity for research and teaching in this division of medical science and art.

The University of Pennsylvania has prepared more than six thousand graduates who are occupying positions of importance in the profession throughout the world. Its course of instruction is of the highest order.

Anyone interested in this profession as a life work is invited to apply for further information to:

DEBATING SEASON CLOSES THIS WEEK

Men's Team Meets Drew; Women Face Albany, New Jersey

Last week marked the end of the 1940-41 season for the men's and women's debating teams.

Closing the men's season, LeRoy F. Hovey '41, and Kyle T. Brown '42, met a Drew university team April 28 at 10:30 in Chatham high school in New Jersey.

Middlebury took the affirmative of the proposition, Resolved: That the nations of the western hemisphere should form a permanent union. It was a decision debate in the Oregon style and the students from Drew won with a 2-1 score.

The women's debating season ended with two non-decision contests, the first with New York State college for teachers in Albany, the second in Paterson, New Jersey with the New Jersey State Teachers' college. This closes a season of victory for the women's team in all decision debates. Elections for next year's team manager will probably take place next week.

At the end of the debating year, records show Middlebury has won four and lost six encounters. Prof. Perley C. Perkins, debating team coach, feels that the overbalance of losses is due to the fact that three key members of last year's team graduated and this year's group is still in the process of being rebuilt.

High spots of the year were two broadcasted debates, and the selection of a Middlebury verbal encounter with the University of Vermont for printing in "The University Debaters' Annual." The broadcast contentions were with Columbia university and on April 27 with N. Y. U. over station WINS. The subject of the published debate was, Resolved: That industry and other private employers may be expected through private initiative rather than government action, to put the employable unemployed to work. Hovey, Brown and Charles Pressman '44 took the affirmative side for Middlebury. This is the fifth year that a Middlebury debate has been selected for the magazine.

In the Middlebury-N. Y. U. encounter which was held on April 27 and broadcast over station WINS John D. Connor '41 and Charles Pressman '44 debated the draft age question.

Dickie '42, Taylor '42 Attend Student Union Conference at University of New Hampshire

Elinor L. Dickie '42 and Alice Taylor '42 represented Middlebury at a conference of the Women's Student Government association held at the University of New Hampshire, Durham, New Hampshire, last Friday and Saturday. Two delegates were sent from each of eight colleges and universities: Bates, New Hampshire, Colby, Maine, Connecticut, Mass. State Teachers', U. V. M. and Middlebury.

Cornelia Stratton Parker, author, was the guest speaker of the weekend. Mrs. Parker addressed the group at the formal banquet held Saturday evening.

All discussions were on the subject of the honor system. The resulting decision was that such a system does not as a rule work well on a co-educational campus, although it is not impossible. It can be made to work in a co-educational college but is more difficult to put into effect. Bates college has such a program in operation.

On Friday, Miss Dickie and Miss Taylor attended a tea, supper and an informal gathering. Saturday morning Dean Woodruff of the University of New Hampshire spoke to the representatives; panel discussions followed.

A picnic during the afternoon and the formal banquet Saturday evening closed the convention. At the formal dinner, a student from each college told of an unusual experience she had come in contact with and the punishment inflicted.

This year marks the seventy-fifth anniversary of the University of New Hampshire, therefore the conference was held at Durham. Of the two meetings scheduled for next year, the first will be held in the fall at the University of Vermont while the second in the spring at Bates college. Not only co-educational colleges will be represented at Vermont.

Vocal and Piano Works Offered By Graduates in Musicale at Inn

Sunday evening, the Middlebury inn was the scene of a musicale, given for the benefit of the Adelphia Circle of the King's Daughters. The performers on this program were Barbara Kitson '39, Dorothy Briggs '39 and Cameron McGraw '40.

The musicians presented the vocal and piano works of Brahms, Beethoven, and Schubert, accompanied by those of several contemporary composers.

LECTURE GIVEN BY PROF. E. SKILLINGS

Prof. Everett Skillings gave a short, illustrated lecture to members of the German club and others from the German department who wished to attend last Friday evening, May 2 at seven o'clock in Munroe hall on the lives of the two famous German poets, Goethe and Schiller.

Professor Skillings showed the group pictures in the form of lantern slides of these two great men, some of their friends, houses in which they lived in Germany, and some of Goethe's original sketches.

Early Bird Walk Draws 25 Students of Biology

Twenty-five people went bird walking yesterday morning at 5:45 o'clock under the leadership of members of the biology department.

The group met at the Recitation hall at 5:30 a. m. where Muriel E. Clifford '43 and Beth M. Warner '43 served doughnuts and coffee to those who were participating. Any member of the student body who is interested in ornithology may go on these bird walks. Those taking biology courses are asked to sign up before the trip in order that an estimate may be made of the number who are planning to go.

The next bird walk will be held on Saturday, May 10. The group will leave the Recitation hall at 5:45 a. m.

Dr. Samuel E. Longwell has been leading these walks since 1921, and to date he has not yet missed getting up for one of these early morning trips. Mr. James E. Morrow Jr., and Miss H. Elizabeth Nichols, biology laboratory assistants, Prof. Alfred M. Dame, and several undergraduates with a knowledge of ornithology have helped to lead groups this year.

As many as thirty species have been seen on one bird walk. At this time of the year a great variety of bird species may be seen.

Three-Game Campaign Fatal To Panther Nine

Squad Crushed By Smooth R.P.I., St. Lawrence Steam Rollers

CLARKSON SCORES MARGINAL VICTORY

Following an opening series marked by three initial defeats, Middlebury's ball team has just returned from another weekend of competition which took in a three-game series including R. P. I., St. Lawrence, and Clarkson tech. These contests were all lost causes for the Midd men, the score book showing tallies of 10-0, 6-0, and 4-3 respectively.

The opening game of the trip on Wednesday featured a clash with a fast stepping R. P. I. nine. Coach Kelly gave the nod to veteran Harry VanGaasbeck to start on the mound against the Engineers. A combination of hard hitting, poor fielding, and general bad breaks, retired him in favor of newcomer George Weimann in the fourth frame.

Rensselear took the lead in the early stages of the contest and maintained it consistently throughout the whole nine innings ending up with a fat slate of ten runs.

Hal Skinner Pitches

Friday, the second, found Coach Kelly's warriors facing a strong St. Lawrence nine made up of point hungry veterans. This second in the three-game weekend found the Middmen on the short end of a 6-0 tally at the close of the ninth. Passing over the roster of old-timers, Kelly selected Hal Skinner to open the game on the mound. Stellar hurling, cagey fielding, and classy St. Lawrence ball-handling, lost the game for Middlebury. After the second frame Skinner settled down to pitch good ball for the rest of the game.

Smarting under the searing imprint of two successive defeats, the Midd aggregation took on a smooth Clarkson nine on Saturday, May 3, with a push that was decidedly lacking in either Wednesday or Friday's games. The team out-pitched, out-hit, and generally out-played their opponents right up to the opening of the ninth when Clarkson turned on a hitherto unnoticed reserve to come out ahead by a narrow one run margin.

Game Lost in Ninth

The first three innings were tight, pitching duels with VanGaasbeck holding down the pitching spot for the entire game. In these innings VanGaasbeck allowed Clarkson no runs, while Midd was in turn held to no runs. So it went until the fifth when Middlebury suddenly got the range and brought in three men on solid base hits. Clarkson retaliated with two runs in the sixth and two more in the ninth. It was anybody's ball game up until the ninth.

Intramurals

A 19-11 victory over the "Dekes" puts the "Sig Ep" softball team into the finals which will be played on this coming Friday afternoon. The other entrant in this playoff of the softball season will be the winner of the Chi-Psi DU game which is scheduled for tomorrow. On Monday afternoon the "Dekes" and the losers in the Thursday game will finish up the season for a try at third place.

Coach Kelly now has the list of teams posted which will enter the tennis matches. In this competition the first round matches will be played off completely by the 12th of May, and the second round matches by the 24th.

Although the individual golf tournament is not a strictly intramural sport, still and all, the various houses will be watching their own entrants with interest. Listed so far in this event are thirty-two men from all classes and these must have completed their final matches by the 27th of May.

Runners To Meet Vermont Saturday

Previous Records Of Two Teams Point To An Even Contest

On Saturday afternoon, May 10, the Middlebury track team will journey to the University of Vermont and meet the Catamount's team which is reputedly a strong squad. The Panthers will be out to wipe off the smear caused by the stinging defeat received from Williams last week.

It is interesting to study the past scoring of the two teams in meets with Union and Williams. The Middmen were victorious over Union by a large score. On the other hand, the Catamounts suffered a defeat from the same school. Williams captured an 85½ to 49½ victory from Vermont, but Middlebury suffered worse, coming out on the wrong end of a 87½ to 47½ score. Comparative scores don't prove the final outcome, but in the comparison of the Williams meets, there seems to be a similarity in the abilities of the two teams.

In regard to the best times and distances of the Middlebury and Vermont runners, Coach Brown believes that the Panthers have the edge in sprints, middle distances, and hurdles. The Catamounts will probably have the edge in the long distance runs, the jumps, the hammer, but not the shot, for Marty Wittlin has bettered the distance of any Vermont field events man.

Captain Jack Hicks, who did not see service in the Williams meet last Saturday, will probably be leading his team on the cinders.

Midd's Netmen To Oppose Red Raiders Friday

The Middlebury tennis squad, after defeating R. P. I. in its first home game, will again hit the road this Friday and Saturday to oppose Colgate and Saint Lawrence on their own courts.

After having recently defeated the Fordham Rams to the tune of 8-1, Colgate seems to be a certain winner in this contest. Upsets do happen, however, as witnessed in the Midd-Williams baseball game, and the Panther underdogs may be able to snatch the game from the fire although they will be playing out of their class. On Saturday, the 10th, the racqueteers travel to Saint Lawrence and this will be the last of the matches with New York stae rivals.

Midd tennis fans will then have another chance to see the team play on the Hepburn courts, when the Colby squad comes down from Waterville, Maine, on next Tuesday afternoon.

MIKE TALK

By Halligan

Something new and different every week—that's what we like about Middlebury. Last Saturday we spent an enjoyable afternoon basking in the sun as the varsity racqueteers went through the motions of winning their first match of the season.

Come to think of it a tennis match has a rather curious effect on the spectators, especially those who are used to leather-lunged shouting, and Brooklyn bleacher humor—for neither of these usual rooting attributes are in fashion with the Forest Hills set.

At first one sits up straight, with all attention riveted on the tennis court, nodding the head from left to right as the ball is driven from one side of the net to the other. Then follows a bit of conversation with neighbor, and before one knows it, the tone has reached such a volume that icy stares are cast in one's direction. So one stops talking.

Back to the tennis match. But then one's eye strays as some member of the opposite sex comes strolling along. If a long, low whistle happens to escape—this too, is regarded as a serious faux pas, and has to stop.

About this time it is thought that perhaps a better, and more comfortable view of the proceeding could be gained from a prone position. So it is adopted. Playful neighbor on the right immediately takes this as his cue to (1) leap joyfully on the small of one's back, or (2) stuff great handfuls of grass down the back of one's shirt (starting at the neck, of course.)

So once again one sits up. If properly aroused he will burst forth with an oh or and ah, and in extreme cases will madly place the palm of one hand on top of the other palm in rapid succession. Such action is known as cheering. All in polite Forest Hills fashion.

As time passes other means of entertainment are found. Neighbor on the left breaks out into absolutely the latest, the funniest joke he ever heard. Of course it invariably happens that one has heard the joke before and didn't think it funny, but on this occasion it seems overwhelmingly humorous—so loud laughter follows. So do the icy stares.

In the quiet that follows, many, many thoughts are running through the space between one's ears, and those which are above censorship dwell on (1) the work that should be done (2) whether it would be worth while walking all the way downtown for a coke, or (3) how nice it would be to sleep. If one cannot find some friend to join him in No. 2, No. 3 is the choice—No. 1 being, of course, idle fancy.

Therefore, with a brief glance at the score board in order to be able to quote facts to those "non-spirited" students, one retires from the scene, thinking how swell it was of him to give up his valuable time for the team, and also of the sudden discovery of a faint sunburn.

We were unable to attend the track meet at Williamstown last weekend, mainly because of the aforementioned tennis match plus other well planned ways to spend our time, but nevertheless we did hear a dull thud in the mid afternoon which told us Marty had done it again.

It really did not surprise us, for we had spent the previous evening with Mr. Wittlin (the man who has no regard for accepted standards), and the gentleman was evidently on the very crest of a wave of good fortune. First and foremost we combined our bridge efforts to rap out a very decisive victory at bridge, and secondly he came across some delicious nut cake. Both of which sent him to the land of nod with a smile on his face, supremely confident that the world lay in the area of his rather large right hand.

And so it must have, for with no good reason Marty sent a 16 lb. ball flying through the ozone a distance of 43 ft. 8in. from where he stood.

A Middlebury fan just can't go wrong next Saturday, whether he stays at home to watch the golf team face Les Frazier's linksmen, or goes abroad to watch the track and baseball team oppose the Catamounts of U. V. M.

Williams Wins Cinder Events To Take Meet

Wittlin Cracks Own Record As Panthers Trail In Final Tally

VIETOR TOPS MEET WITH THREE FIRSTS

The Williams' trackmen literally showed their heels to Coach Brown's Middlebury team at Williams last Saturday, when they ran away with an 87½-47½ victory.

Led by Bill Vietor who stole the show with three first places, Williams runners finished first in every cinder event except the hurdles. Middlebury was allowed but eight points in the six straight running events from the 100 yard dash to the two-mile run.

It was Marty Wittlin who produced Middlebury's outstanding performance for the day in putting the shot 43 feet 8 inches, to shatter his own short-lived record set in the Union meet, by 14½ inches.

Purple Dominates Track

Vietor's fifteen points came from a 9.9 century run, and victories in the 220 and the 220 low hurdles.Even Hicks' presence, wouldn't have prevented Williams from sweeping both middle distance events, races in which Midd had previously shown considerable strength. Chapman of Williams after turning in the time of 1:59 for the half-mile, went on to finish ahead of Stebbins for a 4:34.4 win in the mile run.

Field Men Score Heavily

In the field, Williams' strong man was Al Hearn who garnered fourteen points in four throwing events. But in spite of Hearn's accomplishments, and contrary to usual expectations, most of Midd's points were gathered by the fieldmen. Bob Gale followed Lundrigan in the javelin, while Trask and Davis scored points in the pole vault. Nick Krauzer and newcomer Johnny Ingalls scored a second and third respectively in the hammer throw ,the first competition of the season in this event.

SUMMARY

100 Yard Dash—Won by Vietor, Williams; second, Reeves, Williams; third, Rasmussen, Middlebury. Time: 9.9.

Golf

Home from their first trip of the season, the Middlebury golf team is looking forward to next Saturday's match with the Middlebury Country club, which will be played on the local course.

The team's initial match, played last Tuesday against Union, was won by the Middmen by a 3½ to 2½ score. The following day, a superior Colgate foursome trimmed Coach Beck's golfers 6 to 0.

Saturday's match will probably see the same Middlebury lineup that competed against Union and Colgate. Captain Chapman, Dixie Davis, Duke Diefendorf, and Sandy Young will start in the individual matches. Team play will find Chapman and Davis paired, while Diefendorf and Young will also double up. The team representing the Middlebury Country Club according to Les Frazier, pro of the club, will be Capt. Dud Phinney, George Zelenakas, Bill Craig, and Bob Cartmell, who will tee off in that order.

Tennis Team Wins Over R.P.I. By 6-3

Crawford-Proctor Capture Doubles Match With Rensselaer

Midd's tennismen, after dropping two matches last week, bounced into the win column Saturday, defeating R. P. I. by the convincing score of 6-3.

Captain Jack Crawford, playing the number one position, won his match from Gilmore, 6-3, 7-5. He later teamed with Charlie Proctor to take the number one doubles, displaying the best tennis of the afternoon. The network of this pair was noticeably strong, as they defeated Strayer and Gilmore, 6-3, 6-4. Lew Haines, playing number two, Bob Maxwell, and Charlie Baird, also took their singles matches. Tom Macdonald and Charlie Proctor lost the number three and number four singles matches respectively. In the other doubles matches Macdonald and Haines were beaten in the number two doubles by Miller and Reider in a three set match.

SUMMARY

Singles: Crawford (M) defeated Gilmore; 6-3, 7-5. Haines (M) defeated Miller; 6-4, 6-1. Reider (R. P. I.) defeated Macdonald; 6-2, 6-4. Strayer (R. P. I.) defeated Proctor 6-0, 6-3. Maxwell (M) defeated Smith; 4-6, 6-1, 6-3. Baird (M) defeated Crow; 6-4, 5-7, 7-5.

Doubles: Crawford and Proctor (M) defeated Strayer and Gilmore; 6-3, 6-4. Miller and Reider (R. P. I.) defeated Haines and Macdonald; 6-3, 4-6, 6-3. Baird and Melvin (M) defeated Smith and Sherry; 6-4, 6-3.

Baseball Squad Ready To Meet UVM Challenge

With the sting of three defeats in as many tries last week, the Panther nine encounters St. Michael's today at Winooski park, and will meet Colby tomorrow and Vermont on Saturday.

Coach Kelly planned to start Co-captain Harry VanGaasbeck on the mound today for the Middmen and then save him for Saturday's game at U. V. M. Van, however, is troubled with a lame back and might not see much service this week.

Tomorrow's game with Colby will be played on Porter field diamond, starting at 3:30. Colby has played none of the schools that Middlebury has so far encountered, thus the Maine school's strength is an unknown factor. Hal Skinner, who pitched the St. Lawrence game, will probably start as the Midd hurler.

The game with Vermont on Saturday, with Van pitching, will be played at Burlington as a preliminary to the U. V. M.-Middlebury track meet.

Prof. L. Perkins Writes Textbook

"Mathematics of Finance" Already Used Here By Students

Announcement has recently been made by the publishers, John Wiley and Sons, of the first printing of "Mathematics of Finance" by Prof. Llewellyn R. Perkins, head of the mathematics department.

Professor Perkin's wife, Mrs. Ruth M. Perkins who was graduated from Middlebury in 1932, collaborated with him in the preparation of the material for publication. This book, which will be ready in August, has been used for several years in manual form in Mathematics 22.

The book which deals with the specialized field of mathematics of finance has been written to include, "new methods and techniques which make for increased efficiency" according to the pre-release flyer sent out by the publishers. Containing 330 pages, with illustrations, the book will probably sell for $3.50. The first publication will be released in August. Thus the book will be ready for adoption in colleges next Fall. The book is written for, "undergraduates of college level who have a grounding in algebra" as stated by the publishers and will include the various divisions into which financial mathematics is divided.

Professor Perkins, who has been at Middlebury since 1914 in the department of mathematics, has been doing special study in the financial field for ten years in the preparation and collection of the material for this book. It has been very successful in the courses in which it has been used in manual form so far.

The proofs from the linotyping of this book have been received and are being read by Professor Perkins, assisted by other members of the mathematics department, in preparation for the finished edition.

Tillinghast '42 Elected To Head W. A. A. Cabin

At a meeting of the W. A. A. Harriet Tillinghast '42 was elected manager of the W. A. A. cabin. Lois R. Grandy '42 gave a report of the regional convention of the Athletic Federation of College Women that she attended last April 25 and 26 at Smith college in Northampton, Massachusetts.

The spring sports are now under way and the first round of the tennis matches has been played off. Last Monday the freshmen played baseball with the juniors who won with a score of 17-11. Archery, golf and riding will soon start. On May 13 the old council will give a picnic at the cabin for the new council.

RELEASE DATE FOR ANNUAL IS PUT OFF

On each page, there will also be an informal snapshot besides the regular formal cuts.

The simulated leather cover of the 1942 Kaleidoscope is done in silver and blue. An hour glass, representing the theme of the yearbook is laid over a Middlebury panther, with "Kaleidoscope 1942" written in a silver diagonal slash against the blue background.

Mary L. Eimer '42, business manager of this year's Kaleid, reports that about 850 copies have been printed at a cost of about $3000 dollars.

A committee composed of Sanford, Miss Eimer, and Viola M. Guthrie '42 will elect the business and editorial staffs of next year's Kaleidoscope on the Monday after Junior Week. Results of these elections will be announced in the May 22, issue of the CAMPUS.

Editorial board members will be selected on the basis of assignment credits for the past year, results of a written exam given May 5, and the originality, interest and ability shown by candidates. The tryouts for the 1943 editorial staff are:

William G. Allen, Armand A. Annunsiata, George H. Burt, Stephen G. Wilson, David H. Wood, Betty M. Attenhoffer, Mildred E. Carson, Dorothy E. Forsythe, Ellen O. Gunderson, Barbara B. Higham, Kathryn J. Sempepos, Elisabeth von Thurn, Lenore E. Wolff, Virginia I. Wynn.

Next year's business manager will be elected on a basis of work done during the try-out period as well as the results of the exam to be given at 3:30 p. m. on May 9 in room 104 in Munroe. Candidates for business manager are:

John G. Barmby, Frederick W. Lapham, Israel I. Shapiro, Nancy L. Cowgill, Barbara A. Counsell, Ruth J. DeLong, Sally L. Hovey, Margery R. Miller, Elizabeth B. Scherholz, Carolyn C. Stanwood, Evelyn G. Young.

Still Life

Most unusual are the results obtained when the photographer sets out to create his own pictorial subjects without relying on the set limitations of an individual or a scene. With an opportunity to form his own compositions, to regulate lighting and control form, the camera master gains results that are always interesting and usually technically perfect. The winners on this page accurately reflect the range of interest that is obtainable in still life photography.

Portraits

This division features outstanding portraits taken by collegiate amateurs this year. The winning photographers have caught the personalities of their subjects in a truly remarkable fashion. Special mention should be made of the unusually fine work being done in this field by the photography class at Los Angeles City College. The winning print on this page and the negro print on the cover show excellent lighting technique and composition.

Action - Candid

Entries in this group fell far below the mark set by other classifications but the standards maintained in the division are equally as high — as the winning prints on this page prove. More often the result of a happy circumstance than of careful planning, the taking of a candid or action photo that wins top salon honors is indeed a great achievement for any photographer.

Traveling Salon

To further the ever-growing interest of collegians in photography, Collegiate Digest and the Associated Collegiate Press are preparing a traveling exhibit of outstanding prints entered in Salon Edition competition. Thousands of persons on many campuses viewed last year's Salon Contest winners.

If you are interested in obtaining this unusual display for your school, write to the Salon Editor, Collegiate Digest, stating the week you'll want it. Responsible parties, such as Camera Clubs, student newspapers, or Student Union officials, must take charge of the exhibit and express it prepaid to the next scheduled point on its itinerary.
